

Dharma doll (red)

The first Dharma dolls are said to have been made some 300 years ago at the Sorensen Dharma Temple in Takasaki City in Gunma Prefecture, modeled after the Zen monk, Bodhidharma. The eyebrows and beard represent the crane and the turtle, long considered symbols of longevity in Japan, and the dolls are popular as good luck charms.

It is traditional to paint in the left pupil (the right one facing you) when you make a wish, and then paint in the right pupil when the wish comes true.

Also, it is said to be most lucky to place the doll so that it faces south.

In Japan, red and white are considered lucky and these are the usual colors for a Dharma doll. There are other dolls with different colors, based on oriental astrology, so you can select the color of the doll based on the nature of your wish and your lucky color, increasing the fun and perhaps the efficacy of the charm.

The color red is said to have the power to promote vitality and bring good luck. It should be used to bring victory in work, study or love, etc.

PUPIL

EYES AND NOSE

HAIRLINE

FACE

BASE

Interchangeable front characters

Victory

Longevity

Interchangeable front characters

Good luck

Plain

Interchangeable side characters

Right side : Good fortune and protection from evil

Left side : Perfect health

Interchangeable side characters

Right side : May your greatest desire come true

Left side : Well being of the family

Right side : A multitude of visitors
(customers)

Left side : Thriving business

Recommended interchangeable parts

Body characters : Victory

Side characters : May your greatest desire come true
Achievement of one's goals